Victoria Level 8, Suite 2, Suite 2, 20-22 Albert Road Melbourne Vic, 3205 Australiaquesland Corporate House, 155 Varsity Parade Varsity Lakes, Robina QLD 4226 This tutorial that is part of our SAF course speeches on the accounts of the SAP budget e on P&L extraction accounts in financial accounting. You will learn about these two types of g/l in SAP fi accounts, â € â € â € important differences between them, how to keep them in relevant transactions. I mention the transations and the know -how related to this process. An General Ledger account (G/L) is required to record an organization commercial transactions. Financial and SAP management relationships are generated according to the transactions booked compared to the general accounting accounts. There are two types of G/L in SAP accounts: SAP Libra and accounts of the income statement p & l. P&L is for profit and loss. We discuss these types of accounts in more details. Account of the SAP and losses account account is a financial report that summarizes costs, expenses and revenues incurred for the specific period of time. The expenses /losses are booked on the debt side and the profit /income is booked on the credit side in the SAP financial accounting. Account of the SAP P&L account (Transaction FS00) account of the financial statement is a financial report that summarizes the activities, the passivities and the equity of a company for the specific period of time. At the end of the year, net profit or net loss will be moved to the capital account in the budget. SAP budget account (FS00 transaction) differences between the accounts of the SAP budget and the accounts of the P&L report there are several important differences between the accounts of the budget and the accounts of the account p & l.
